BUILDING HERE FOR YEAR NEAR $200,000 MARK

CARMEL'S building total for the year came within a scant $5000 of reaching the $200,000 mark, as showed by figures compiled in The Pine Cone office after search of the city records. While no totals are available for the years immediately preceding 1935, it is estimated that this far outstrips any year since 1929. The total of building for the year was $196,500.

The year's biggest month was May, when the new theater permit and the Gould building permit were both issued; the first for $50,000, the second for $15,900. The total for that month was $70,985. September accounted for $38,285 of new construction started, the second biggest month. August, with only $3410 in permits, was the smallest month of the year. December, always a quiet month for building, also lagged, the total being $5805.

Seven permits were issued during the month just past. The two largest jobs were new cottages, one for Mrs. Grace Rapp on Guadalupe, and Mrs. Jean C. Malott's cottage on Santa Fe. Dene Denny and Hazel Watrous are building a guest cottage near their home on Dolores. Other permits, for small alterations, repairs and additions, were issued to Isabel Smith for Holiday House on Camino Real; Miss Fanny Johnson, Dolores near Twelfth; Ross C. Miller, Torres near Mountain View; and Miss Anna Porter on Mission.

The "score" for building during 1935, month by month, is as follows:

January, $4030; February, $6231; March, $5148; April, $5460; May, $70,985; June, $11,000; July, $15,990; August, $3410; September, $38,285; October, $20,004; November, $10,183; December, $5805.

HEADS STATE PROJECT

Jimmy Hopper, Carmel writer and former newspaper man, has been appointed by Frank Y. McLaughlin, state WPA director, as state director of the Federal Writers' Project, it was learned here yesterday. He succeeds Dr. Paul Radin, resigned.

$40,564 PAID CITY IN TAXES

MONDAY was the last day for payment of taxes, and the final click of the brand new adding machine under the nimble fingers of Deputy Tax Collector Hefling showed that a total of $40,564.66 was paid into the city treasury during November and December. During the same period, nearly $3000 was paid in business licenses, so that Carmel's total income during the two-months period was $42,917.22.

Taxes paid up to the end of December last year amounted to $33,668.76, showing an increase this year of nearly $7000. Figures are not yet available on this year's delinquencies as compared to last. Due to the fact that late mails from property owners residing at a distance may bring additional tax moneys, the year's total will also grow a bit this week, according to Mr. Hefling.

Carmel's Rainfall 2.74 Inches Behind

Carmel's rainfall lags 2.74 inches behind last year, when at this period 7.30 inches had fallen of the season's total of over 25 inches. The current storm began last Friday, when 2.2 inches was recorded. Sunday morning the gauge read .70 for the hard rain of Saturday night, and on Tuesday .18 was recorded. Total for the season, as of Jan. 2, is 4.86 inches.

Write It "1936" When You Send Out Your Letters

An incalculable division of time . . . and 1935 has become 1936. Seems like several years ago since the old year swung into action, so many things have happened since then! Good, bad, indifferent, it's over now, with a new year budding. There's nothing like a good beginning, you know, with new resolutions and all. But just as a reminder, be sure you write it "1936" when you make out your checks and write your letters this month.

Woman's Club Will Resume Activities

Carmel Woman's club will resume its activities after the first of the year with the monthly general meeting of Monday, Jan. 6, when the program will be presented by Mrs. F. A. Ingalls of Pebble Beach. She will read a paper, "On Reading Shakespeare," from the book by Logan Pearsall Smith. This reading was given recently with great success at Mills College, of which Mrs. Ingalls is a director. The meeting will be held at Pine Inn, beginning at 2:30, and will be followed by the usual social hour and tea.

Forum Lecture Thursday, Jan. 9

Thursday, Jan. 9 is the date of the next lecture of the Carmel Forum series at Sunset Auditorium. The speaker is Dr. Hubert Phillips, dean of the lower division of Fresno State College, and his topic will be "England, the Bulwark of Democracy," the talk which he gave before the Commonwealth club of San Francisco in October. Dr. Phillips was the favorite choice of many forum members and an effort was made to secure him at once when the forum was inaugurated in the fall. Because he is a popular and busy lecturer, much in demand for university extension and forum groups all over the state, the January date was the earliest he could give to Carmel.

Many Carmelites have heard Dr. Phillips, and they promise in him a speaker of exceptional value and interest. The lecture will begin promptly at 8 o'clock, Thursday evening of next week, and is open to the public, without charge. Questions and discussion will follow the talk.

At Carmel library a display of books has been arranged on topics related to the subject which Dr. Phillips will discuss. Supplementary reading will help to prepare a background for discussion of the topic both after Dr. Phillips' lecture and for the Monday night adult education discussion group at Sunset school, led by Dr. F. W. Haasis.

First Council Meeting of 1936 To Take Up Width of Sidewalks

FIRST council meeting of 1936 will be held this evening. The meeting should have been held Wednesday night, but that being a holiday it was put over until Thursday night. But Major Bowes' Amateurs were holding forth that evening, and there was no quorum in the council chamber. So the regular monthly meeting will be held tonight.

Carmel council meetings are practically impossible to dope in advance, as very often the theme song of the evening is sounded by one of the written or verbal communications which give an impromptu character to the proceedings. But among matters of business left unfinished at the last meeting were two ordinances: one passed first reading and the other was tabled. The first was the ordinance setting the width of the sidewalk on both sides of Ocean avenue between Mission and Junipero at eight feet instead of 12, with a view to widening the highway in that block.

This matter first came up last summer, and according to the contention of two council members, was definitely settled at that time. Just to make sure, they met again in a special Saturday morning session early in December, and attempted by a simple motion to set the sidewalk width. This action was declared to be null and void, when City Attorney Argyll Campbell called to the attention of the council the fact that the widths of sidewalks and center strips on Ocean avenue had been set by a resolution of a previous council, and could not be set aside quite that simply. The ordinance passed first reading at the last meeting by a three-two vote, Mayor Thoburn and Councilman Rowntree voting against it.

Also introduced at the last meeting was an ordinance removing the duties of tax collector from the overburdened police department. This ordinance was tabled for further study, and should come up tonight.

All Decked Out for Annual S. F. Artists' Frolic

THE funfest of Western artists—the annual Parilla and Artists' Ball of the San Francisco Art Association—set for Friday night, Jan. 17, is claiming the attention of gay San Francisco as an early festivity of the New Year.

Called Cambodian Ball this season, the coming event has for its pageant feature "The Fall of Angkor-Vat". Told in well constructed pantomime with exotic color movement, the story relates the destruction of Angkor-Vat following the failure of a prince of the Kambujas to carry out the dictate of King Kambu who had promised that every prince should betroth the queen, immortal princess of the Najas, before bespeaking a mortal for his bride.

Exposition auditorium will be transformed into a section of the temple of Angkor-Vat, the final triumph of Kmer architecture, for the Parilla. The various tribes and countries of Cambodia will be represented by artists groups in color units. Among the participants will be Amy Rhein and Marilla Cutting of the Alumni California School of Fine Arts group, in accompanying picture.

Proceeds from the Parilla go to the San Francisco Museum of Art. The ball is open to the public but no one will be permitted on the dance floor unless in costume.

Books, Old and New

By THELMA B. MILLER

ELLEN GLASGOW, the southern aristocrat, has written one of the grimmest of the novels of the depression in her "Vein of Iron." This may or may not have been her purpose, but the very force of her thesis carried her inevitably to a wide-eyed regard of the present; clear and valid because she is a thinker, unable to close her eyes to happenings which may well lie outside the sphere of her own experience. The impact of her book is greater than that of the true "proletarian" novel. This lady does not write in the argot of the left-wing novelists; her indictment of the economic system is but a corollary to her observations of the cheap shoddiness underlying much of modern urban life; the sponginess of character which she sees as one of the causative factors.

But that does not prevent her from seeing that in the debacle, the full force of fate's blows falls upon the worthy as well as the unworthy. She places side by side in the bread line a couple who are there because the man has lost his week's wages in a slot machine, while his wife whines that she must now miss her weekly movie and the baby must do without its medicine; an old craftsman whose dominant emotion is a fanatical fear of dying in the alms-house where he was born; and a scholar who has written the greatest book of philosophy of his time.

America has produced no better stock than the Fincastle family, whose fortune Miss Glasgow follows down the spiral. Scotch-Irish Presbyterians, who settled in the Great Valley of Virginia, who fought with the Indians for it, developed their vein of iron through hand-to-hand combat for subsistence in the wilderness, sustained by their stern faith. Poverty was the most familiar condition of the Fincastles; so long as it was in its rural setting, among the hills where they were born, lived, and were buried for generations, it had a certain dignity. It remained for the city and the poverty of the 1930's, with their whip-lash of fear and general social disintegration to beat them to their knees. Their personal solution was a retreat to the wilderness. They were the lucky exception, one feels, to have this avenue open. Not only in having a place to go but in having the ways of the wilderness still in their blood. For good measure, Miss Glasgow throws in the promise of a job, in town, for the bread-winner, while the rest of the family raises vegetables and chickens for immediate subsistence. It isn't always this simple.

The Fincastles are fine people; you have a warm, sympathetic concern for every one of them. The invincible grandmother, fundamentalist, but incapable of unkindness even to those whom she saw justly chastened by her Presbyterian God. The gently-bred mother, without the Fincastle's vein of iron, but with something more, a spiritual flexibility that permitted her to detach herself, with a joke, from the hardships which broke her body and her heart. John Fincastle, the father, the essentially Christian philosopher whose gentle doubts, not of a Creator or his ultimate beneficence, but of Calvinistic tenets, resulted in public disgrace, loss of the pulpit which he adorned so well, and long economic disaster. And Ada, the daughter; her tragic love-affair with Ralph McBride, which came right almost too late to do them any good.

So this is not at all a treatise on economics; it is first of all a novel with flesh and blood and sinews. You arrive by a direct enough route at the grim picture of the present; an absorbing story unwinds all the way. It was not the author's first purpose, but she throws a bitter answer in the teeth of those who still think some fanatics are "unduly alarmed" about the current crisis, who think that any man or woman, willing and able, can find a job whatever the prevalent circumstance.

Plans Made for Boy Scout Meeting

At the monthly luncheon of the Carmel district Boy Scout council held yesterday noon at Normandie Inn, plans were made for the annual meeting of the Monterey Bay Area council to be held at Del Monte Monday, Jan. 13. The speaker will be Chief of Police William J. Quinn of San Francisco, an outstanding figure in boys' work. One of his chief interests is to attract and hold the interest of boys with the aim of forming citizens instead of criminals. His talk will be along the line of this objective.

The council will hold a business meeting at 8 o'clock in the Copper Cup room at Del Monte, at which time a reception will be held for the ladies of the council members, who may also attend the dinner meeting.

Democrats To Rally Wednesday Evening for Roosevelt Dinner

MONTEREY county Democrats will not let any grass grow under their feet in the way of getting under way for the 1936 campaign. Stressing the Jackson Day-Roosevelt dinner of next Wednesday evening as "a vote of confidence for our president" plans are being made for an enthusiastic rally. The dinner will be at Hotel San Carlos in Monterey, at 6:30, and a feature of the program will be the 7 o'clock radio broadcast of President Roosevelt, in commemoration of the day given nationwide observance by good Democrats.

Carmel Martin is in charge of preliminary arrangements for the dinner, on behalf of the county central committee of which he is a member. "Any of our Republican friends who want to know the TRUTH, are invited to attend the dinner," he commented.

The chief speaker has not yet been announced, but will be a prominent San Francisco Democrat. Those who will give brief addresses are Artyll Campbell, chairman of the central committee, Donald Younger of Santa Cruz, and Dr. J. M. O'Donnell of Hollister. Dr. Roland Reeves of Salinas will act as toastmaster. There will also be musical numbers. This is not a "stag" affair, but Democrats, or even Republicans, of the gentler sex will be welcomed.

Emmett McMenamin is chairman of the committee on tickets, which may be obtained in Carmel from Don Hale, Arthur Shand or Lee Gottfried.

J. W. CLAYWELL TAKES TO OPEN IN WHEEL CHAIR

A welcome sight Tuesday afternoon was J. W. Claywell taking the air on Dolores street, in a wheel chair. Since sustaining serious injuries in a fall several months ago he has been confined to his home, but has convalesced sufficiently to be trundled out into the pleasant winter sunshine.

Mr. and Mrs. John Neikirk moved to San Jose Monday where Mr. Neikirk transacted business.

Major Bowes' Amateurs Put On Real Old-Time Vaudeville Show

By THELMA B. MILLER

WELL, as we live and breathe, if we didn't have a regular old-time vaudeville show at Sunset auditorium the other night, when a traveling troupe of amateurs discovered by Major Bowes' radio programs appeared on a program sponsored by Carmel Legion post. The movies and the radio sounded the death knell of vaudeville, but we suddenly realized that the radio may actually be building up an audience for vaudeville again, by such variety programs as the genial major promotes. Aside from the fact that there was practically no hoofing—which won't register much over the radio until television comes along—this was a good variety show, presided over by a casual and pleasant master of ceremonies, Ted Mack.

The platform decorations consisted of a large gong on a bell—a bow to the major—a xylophone, a bunch of holly, a grand piano, a girl in black who played it, a microphone, and a table with a lot of glass goblets of various sizes, which, in the season, we sort of expected to see filled with egg nog before the performance was over. But this turned out to be the prop of the player of musical glasses, Marshall Rogers, who coaxed from them a thin and tuneful wail by moistening his fingers and rubbing them around the rims.

First on the program were three boys from Toronto, calling themselves the Big Bad Wolf Boys, a vocal trio. The blonde in the pale blue draperies, who played first the xylophone and then a violin, was Otie Love, formerly a teacher of French. Next came Buddy Raymond, a small baritone with a large voice of rather ingratiating quality when it was not making the welkin ring too loud.

Mildred Koppel may have majored in stenography at high school, but we will wager she was also plugging away with some good old Italian teacher with more than a speaking acquaintance with the bel canto style, for her coloratura soprano showed considerable evidence of careful training.

Ruth Reed, billed as "The Happy Singer of Happy Songs" hailed from Englewood, N. J.; announced as a local amateur was Joe Jimoto, who has a pleasant and typical Italian tenor, but is handicapped by lack of musical feeling. From Santa Cruz

PINE NEEDLES

Mrs. Grace Rodgers will move Saturday from her house on San Antonio to the Carmel Highlands home of Paul Vissinger, with whom she has made an exchange of properties.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Smith of Oakland have arrived at Pine Inn, to stay for a month.

Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Cannon of San Francisco were at Pine Inn for the holiday period.

came a child entertainer. Dave Small, the boy with the flexible tonils, imitated modern mechanical sounds and barnyard noises—the former better than the latter, probably because he has heard more of them.

EVERYBODY REGISTER

To answer numerous queries received about the new registration law; everyone must reregister, Jan. 2 was the day the books opened and you have until March 26 to register for the primaries. If you don't vote in the primaries, you must register again for the general election, and the second registration period is from July 18 to Sept. 24. The place to register is Staniford's Drug store, on Ocean.

MARJORIE CRANDALL DIES

Marjorie N. Crandall, a native of Illinois, died Saturday at her temporary home at Tenth and Monte Verde, where she had been residing for three months. She was 52 years of age. The body was removed to Los Angeles for burial, with T. A. Dorney in charge of arrangements.

MRS. ANDREWS IMPROVING

Mrs. Gertrude Nelson Andrews is at Los Altos with friends, is daily improving in health and is expected to rejoin her husband, Fred G. Andrews, in about a fortnight.

Mrs. Alfred Schreff was in Carmel this week, looking after her property. She and Mr. Schreff came down from University of Oregon for his exhibit in San Francisco just before Christmas.

Spending several days here during the holiday week were Dr. and Mrs. D. Charles Gardner. He is rector of Stanford, and after retirement expects to come to Carmel to live.

June Delight Canoles went to San Francisco yesterday, to remain for a week. Mr. and Mrs. Canoles returned early in the week from Yosemite, where he was one of the Scout council members in charge of the Carmel boys at the winter encampment.

After spending the vacation period with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alger Fast, Robert and Douglas Fast drove south Monday to attend the Rose Bowl game. Douglas, a student at U. C. L. A., will return to his studies there, and Robert returns to Stanford. Barbara Winslow accompanied them south, returning to Hollywood.

Two Local Men Have N. Y. Plays

The end of last week saw the New York openings of two plays in which Carmel is interested: Martin Flavin's "Tapestry in Gray" at the Shubert theater, and John Patrick's "Hell Freezes Over" at the Ritz. The former was scheduled to open Dec. 27, the latter the 28th. The pony express has not yet come through with word of how they went; one or both may have folded by this time, but Carmel hopes for the best. By next week we will have seen the reviews and know the best or the worst.

Carmel amateur players presented works of both these playwrights last season. Flavin's "Sunday" and Patrick's "Glory Lane," both premieres. Flavin's "Downes Had a Heel" with Walter Hampden in the lead in New York this fall was a flop.

Elissa Landi, Melvyn Douglas, Minor Watson and Arnold Korff were featured in the advance notices of "Tapestry in Gray." "Hell Freezes Over" has an all-male cast, headed by Louis Calhern, Lee Baker and John B. Little. Flavin thinks this new play the best he has ever done.

C. C. Yelland, publisher of Lanesboro, Minn., accompanied by Mrs. Yelland, were Carmel visitors last week-end. They were on their way to Southern California.

Byzantine Vocal Ensemble Coming

The Denny-Watrous Concert Management will open 1936 with a concert of internationally recognized merit, presenting the Byzantine Vocal Ensemble at Pine Inn on Saturday evening, Jan. 18. Christos Vrionides and his Byzantine Ensemble have acquainted American audiences with lofty musical systems of antiquity:—Hebrew, Chinese, Ancient Greek, Ambrosian-Gregorian, Byzantine.

Byzantine music, the ensemble's specialty, was totally unknown to the American public before the appearance of Mr. Vrionides and his singers. Coming from Europe a few seasons ago they appeared before a distinguished group to demonstrate their art and mastery of the various musical idioms they present. The N. Y. World Telegram has said: "Mr. Vrionides is a prize rummager in the curio shops of music." Such curios as the quarter-tone and one-third of a tone singing in Byzantine music and the most modern compositions as well as other exotic features, make up the delightfully electric programs of the Byzantine Vocal Ensemble.

The New York American referred to their initial recital with graphic emphasis stating: "They came and conquered last night." Other leading dailies likewise were enthusiastic, and the result has been a veritable triumph for Mr. Vrionides and his Byzantine Vocal Ensemble. Their programs are a rare experience in musical culture.

HIGHWAY PROGRAM

More than $2,000,000 worth on the Federal Works Program public road and grade crossing projects in California will have been opened by the end of this month, it was announced by WPA officials. This sum represents 69 jobs in an approximate $15,000,000 program.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

ABBIE LOU BOSWORTH, one of the "young Carmel artists," has at least temporarily deserted her favorite media, oils and wood engravings, for a job with National Geographic magazine, in Washington. Although she has only been there for a few months, she was lucky enough to get three weeks' holiday leave and is visiting her family here after a considerable absence.

A couple of years ago Miss Bosworth made a rather fateful trip to Norway. It was important first, because she did some quite remarkable paintings there—it is her cold, northern things that most Carmel art gallery habitués will think of first, when they hear her name—and secondly, because she wrote and sold to Geographic an article which resulted in the offer of a staff position.

Her story "Life in a Norway Valley" was published last May, and turning back to it—for we missed it at the time, for some reason—one finds a simple and charming account of her months there with the peasant family of her old nurse, with much graphic data of the typical surroundings and occupations of such a family. Being blonde and tall, she "looked more Norwegian than most of the Norwegians" and found herself very much at home.

Last year Miss Bosworth traveled in England, Skye, France and Spain, but as she was with a party there was not much time for painting. So for a considerable period she has been away from the work for which she prepared by study at the Boston Museum school and the Art Students League in New York. She regrets it, of course, and finds there is a certain futility in even seeing beauty now that she is away from her easel. "I feel almost as if I have not even the right to look," she expressed it.

She has some interesting things to tell of the routine in the office of the great pictorial magazine. She has a flexible sort of position, working mostly in the illustrations department, but helping out in the editorial department too.

The staff is trained to take infinite pains, in the interests of accuracy and to avoid duplication of pictures. In 30 years, she says, only one picture has been used twice. The magazine has a file of some 600,000 photographs. The articles are not for the most part staff-written, but are contributions accepted from free-lance writers. Photographs accompany most of them, but from the commodious files supplementary illustrations are selected. Besides helping with the selection of such illustrations, Miss Bosworth has also been writing the captions or "legends" to go under the pictures.

Scheduled for spring publication, says Miss Bosworth, is a beautifully illustrated article on the wild flowers of California, written last spring at the time of the glorious display in the Valley, which so many Carmelites visited.

BARBARA NEWBERRY, "the girl with the beautiful legs" who was married to the Londoner, Robert E. Foster last Sunday, is the niece of Perry Newberry, a member of the numerous Newberry clan in Coldwater, Mich., where the "Daily Reporter" is their family newspaper. Mrs. Grace Kitchel, Perry's sister, in whose home the ceremony was performed, is publisher of the paper, brother Roy, former Carmelite, is the business manager, and Max, father of Barbara, is the subscription manager.

The lovely Barbara is a musical comedienne and former Ziegfeld follies girl. She was formerly the wife of Eddie Foy Jr. She will live in England and reports are that she will leave the stage. She has never been in Carmel, and Perry, as a matter of fact, has never seen her. From the pictures of her currently appearing in the public prints it is distinctly his loss. From those same pictures she appears to bear a certain resemblance to Dana Newberry, Roy's daughter, whom Carmel remembers as a child.

THE death of Henri Pirenne, world-renowned historian, is of particular interest to Carmel as his niece, Jeanne Marie Pirenne, is a well known personality here. The late Henri Pirenne, who for many years held the position of history professor at the University of Gand, is perhaps best remembered for his work with the Carnegie Institute for International Peace. He was associated with Professor James T. Shotwell of Columbia University, and together they published an economic and social history of the world war.

Another of Madame Pirenne's uncles, Antoine Pirenne, is also famous. He was a philosopher, such a one as Madame's friends claim her to be, and his Social and Political Studies is still a standard text book in the French schools.

Madame has many stories to tell of Henri Pirenne, and of these, her favorite is this: During the war, the Germans, desiring to turn the French University of Ghent into a Flemish University, asked Henri Pirenne if he would accept an appointment under the new regime. He answered with quite considerable wit:

"Yes, but on one condition. It is that Albert the First will ratify my appointment." After this terse reply, Henri was taken prisoner. The Germans treated him well, however. After the war, he followed Madame Pirenne to this country. His first action, when he was lecturing at Berkeley, was to ascertain the whereabouts of Madame Jeanne Marie Pirenne, who teaches French here.

J. Q. WILLIAMS, promotional manager for Hotel Oakland, has been in Carmel for the past few days, the guest of John Jordan of Pine Inn. Mr. Williams has been connected with some of the biggest hotels throughout the country. Before going into the hotel business he was a professional dancer and has the distinction of having introduced the fox trot. He was formerly a dancing partner of Irene Castle.

Composer Henry Cowell New U. C. Instructor

Henry Cowell, composer, lecturer and prophet of the "new music" is listed among the new instructors at University of California. He has been connected with the extension division, as well as being a faculty member at Mills, and at the New School for Social Research in New York City. He was expected to arrive from New York this week and to take up his duties at U. C. with the new term.

Words from Psalms Form Golden Text

"Among the gods there is none like unto thee, O Lord; . . . For thou art great, and doest wondrous things: thou art God alone." These words from Psalms comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, Jan. 5, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "God." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea. . . . And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God" (Rev. 21: 1, 3).

The following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "This testimony of Holy Writ sustains the fact in Science, that the heavens and earth to one human consciousness, that consciousness which God bestows, are spiritual, while to another, the unilluminated human mind, the vision is material. . . . Accompanying this scientific consciousness was another revelation, even the declaration from heaven, supreme harmony, that God, the divine Principle of harmony, is ever with men, and they are His people" (p. 573).

Defective Windshield Must Be Explained

Automobiles with defective windshields that reduce road visibility will bring drivers into court for an explanation.

The new vehicle code makes it a misdemeanor to operate a vehicle on which there is a windshield that impairs visibility, and California highway patrol officers have been instructed by Chief E. Raymond Cato to apprehend such violators. Officers will give offenders 48 hours in which to have a new windshield installed before citing them to appear in courts, says Cato.

THE WELL-READ MAN

The man of well-rounded mental habits will not lose the power to read contentiously, accepting ideas only after they have been tried and tested in the crucible of his own critical faculties. It is the well-read man who is most likely to serve his community well and reap the fine fruit of life. At the outset it does not greatly matter what he reads—though the better the book, the greater of course the reward—if only he succeeds in getting the power of easy and free reading. Once so equipped, he will lay hold on authors who bring insight and understanding.

Monterey County Third In Farm and Ranch Land In California

MONTEREY county is the third ranking county in the state of California for total acreage of land in farms and ranches, according to a preliminary report just issued by Director William L. Austin, Bureau of Census of the Department of Commerce.

Land in farms and ranches in this county on Jan. 1, 1935 totaled 1,205,065 acres as compared with 1,674,448 acres in San Luis Obispo and with 1,618,748 acres in Kern, the leading counties in the State in total farm land area. Monterey reported 2085 farms and ranches in 1935, an increase of 194 over the number enumerated in the census of 1930. The average value of land and buildings decreased over this five-year period from $37,149 to $28,071 and the average size from 690.1 to 578 acres. This decrease of over 16 per cent, or 112.1 acres in average size per farm and ranch indicates that there has been a large gain in the number of small-scale operations in this important lettuce-producing county.

The 1934 crop of hay totaled 53,325 acres and 106,457 tons as compared with 69,318 acres and 127,920 tons harvested in 1929. Wheat acreage decreased over this period from 22,625 acres and 365,875 bushels to 17,778 acres and 294,151 bushels. The barley crop declined sharply from 39,242 acres and 971,072 bushels to 21,138 acres and 409,343 bushels. Sugar beets for sugar showed a remarkable increase over the 1929 crop, this county having harvested in 1934 a total of 11,720 acres and 182,682 tons, next largest in the state to Yolo county, which had 23,850 acres and 430,382 tons.

With the large acreage in Monterey county used for grazing, which was 73 per cent of the total farm land, cattle in 1935 shows an increase of 6207 head above the number enumerated in 1930. Cows increased over this five-year period from 30,923 to 35,849. Other livestock reported in 1935 included 21,353 sheep, 12,237 hogs, 5439 horses, and 287 mules.

The 1935 figures for this and similar releases are preliminary and subject to revision.

Class in Photography to Open at Sunset

A photography class with Mrs. Leota May Tucker as the instructor will be an added feature of the spring term of the adult education program which opens Monday evening, Jan. 6. The first meeting of the class is scheduled for 7:15 in the art room at Sunset school. Admission to the class is open to the public without charge. Students will be required to furnish their own materials for the work.

Mrs. Tucker has just completed a successful term of instruction in the adult program of Salinas Junior College where she has been in charge of a similar class. She is well qualified by her past training and experience for teaching this work.

The content of the course will deal with the fundamental theories and practices of photography. Qualified students will be offered an opportunity to take up any of the several branches of photographic work which may fit their special interests and aptitudes, such as: pictorial, commercial, color, legal and photo-engraving.

PINE PITH, PITCH AND BARK

CALIFORNIA has always looked complacently upon the operations of big-time gangsters in the east who organize rackets in everything from pins to pianos. We have always thought we had no such powerful parasites out here.

Last week our complacency was rudely upset when it was disclosed that a group of New York racketeers have the artichoke industry by the throat. Thus hitting at the very deors of Carmel, around which flourishes the gardens from which come the greater amount of the artichokes consumed in the United States, States, Monterey and San Mateo county being the two leading producers in the west.

In dramatic fashion Mayor La Guardia of New York started a "clean up" of the gang in his city. He issued a proclamation prohibiting the sale of artichokes after Christmas. He would rather deny his citizens this privilege of eating artichokes than to let gangsters intimidate and rob them. His move got widespread applause from grocers out here.

It is astonishing how effectually the racketeers have bottled up this trade. Even in California, growers were afraid to market their product directly to the east. Had they tried, something would have happened to their artichokes — their product would have been destroyed.

Now viciousness of this sort may get by on a large scale in the east, but there is no place for it in this state. Racketeering in artichokes, if we let it continue, could very well spread to other things.

It is clearly up to the state government to do something about this. Or, since the racket is more or less national in scope, perhaps even a federal investigation would be in order. But however it is done, the lid must be blown off this situation, and the mess thoroughly cleaned up.

CONGRESS is coming! Already "the boys" are in Washington engaging in skirmishes preliminary to the official beginning of legislative business.

This session, the President and his advisers have intimated, will be short and snappy. Too much law-making in an election year is not good for the party in power, or even, sometimes, for the party out of power.

The program is for nothing new, for no far-reaching laws, for nothing drastic. Nevertheless there will be fireworks. The body of work facing the Congress may be divided into three parts. One is legislation to deal with America's relations to war-threatened Europe. Another is the soldiers' bonus. A third is action to meet court decisions, if any, against already existing New Deal laws.

Principal contention over neutrality legislation will be over how much power to shape this country's course should be left in the hands of the President and the State Department, or how much of our course should be laid down in law which the State Department must follow. It appears now that those favoring definite laws, including one that would drop some of the "rights" we have heretofore insisted upon on the high seas, have the upper hand.

There is little question about the bonus. It is generally conceded payment will be achieved, probably over a Presidential veto. The manner of payment is still something of a question.

As to the plugging of holes shot in New Deal laws by the Supreme Court, if they are so shot, little can be said. It all depends on how big the holes are, and how close they are to the heart. Wholesale scuttling of these laws is the only thing that can keep Congress overly long in session, the only thing which could develop far-reaching reverberations.

Meanwhile the country waits, a little apprehensive and immensely interested.

THE present generation of Carmel writers need not worry much about it, but Booth Tarkington, Hoosier author, is predicting the ultimate doom of novels and poems.

"The novel and the poem may become extinct in 200 years, 100 years, or in much less time," the writer said in an interview. "Radio and talking pictures already have displaced books in many homes, and television—near the threshold of American homes now—will injure the popularity of books. Other unforeseen inventions probably will have the same effect."

Tarkington declared: "There always will be books, but perhaps the only books in the future—far away though it may be—will be reference books, scientific books and research books."

He explained that the average novel reader "reads for entertainment and with a television box in his home, he will be able to get his entertainment cheaper."

CALIFORNIA'S curfew hour on liquor establishments (no liquor sales from 2 a. m. to 6 a. m.) was nullified by a Los Angeles superior court decision, with resultant split between city, county and state enforcement agencies. The State Board of Equalization discounts the ruling, stands pat on statewide enforcement; Los Angeles county will discontinue arrests, and the city police have not yet adopted a policy. The decision will be appealed.

"Whisky drinkers declining," says news headline. We thought very few of them did.

PERRY NEWBERRY REVIEWS ACTIVITIES OF PAST YEAR IN CARMEL

By PERRY NEWBERRY

HERE at the close of the year 1935 in Carmel, let's look it over. Have the 12 months just past added interest to this village of ours, or has its attractions diminished? Has Carmel gained or lost in prestige in the passage of time?

First, there has been a growing difference of opinion between the business concerns and the residents as to the pathway of progress, marked by such proposals as a widening of down-town roadways, the surrender of the dunes to encroachment, lengthening the time of lighting the Christmas trees, and multiplying the number of those symbols of Yuletide. Usually, these changes have been advocated by the merchants, and resisted by the home-owners. In consequence, the idea has grown that the interests of these groups are in conflict.

There certainly should be no such difference of opinion, for merchants, residents, artists, musicians and writers benefit together by retaining for Carmel the distinction and uniqueness which have made its fame. Fearing down these evidences of originality must result in a loss of power to attract, not only new residents, but also the tourists. If Carmel becomes like other California beach towns, it must compete with them, and it would take years to match their board-walks, pikes, and municipal piers and bandstands. So long as Carmel's beach and sand-dunes are kept clear of all encroachment, there will be plenty of people coming here to give the merchants business, rent the summer cottages, and attend the dramatic and musical events of our artists.

It is understandable that to some merchants a temporary advantage may appear more substantial than the idealistic conception of a permanent growth built upon character. Some figure that if one Christmas tree on Ocean avenue is good, three will be thrice as effective; that a month's lighting will quadruple the benefit of the week from Christmas Eve until New Year's. They have not given it full consideration, or they would realize the reverse is true in this system of mathematics. The lone tree, alight in green lamps, shining clear as night fell on Christmas Eve, at the head of Ocean avenue which otherwise lay dark beyond it, was well worth coming a hundred miles to view. Nobody would come very far to see the illuminations this year, or would they need to. Other cities could do the multiple lights bigger and better, so we had nothing to offer.

Lighting that single tree on Christmas Eve, with children singing anthems and carols, with a Santa Claus distributing gifts, and the subsequent visits of the carolers to homes of the invalided and bed-ridden, was so well worth maintaining as a Carmel institution that the business men, merchants, residents, artists and all might have given time and care to its preservation. It was worth many dollars to business and real estate in the town. Cold-bloodedly, apart from any sentiment, a valued asset of Carmel was tossed into the discard when that institution was allowed to lapse.

On the other hand, down-town Carmel has, in its last year's growth, added some buildings of excellent artistry to Ocean avenue, continuing the tradition of the little shop of distinction. There has been nothing built that leaves a bad taste in the mouth; which is a very fair proof of the desire and effectiveness of business conformity to Carmel's ideals. Residences, too, going up plentifully in and about the village, have been well planned and constructed.

The everlasting problem of trees upon streets and city-owned property has had its ebbs and flows. Strict adherence to the ordinance which provides that only the council, as a whole, may give permission for the felling of a city-owned tree, has not always been adhered to. Individual councilmen, and in one notable case, an individual not a councilman, have allowed trees to come down that might have been saved. But that is a perpetual battle in Carmel, and the past year has not been fiercer than usual. Carmel's Magna Charta, the zoning ordinance, has escaped the year 1935 dented a trifle, not broken or nicked. Two-family dwellings in the residence zone, a perpetual menace because of the ease in modification and the difficulty of determining what constitutes a second kitchen, have met vigorous antagonism from the authorities, and few, if any, have crept in. In the case of a club house at the edge of the business zone, a restricted permit was granted by the council, after a hearing which developed no opposition.

An excellent bit of work this year has been the scenic drive curb and storm-water flow, a protection to that beautiful street done with such careful attention to artistry that it is in no way an impertinence to the eye. By contrast with the white-washed boiler atrocity at the foot of Ocean avenue, it seems the work of genius, and it proves the value of careful planning of public works.

The visible things we must applaud in 1935 are the doings of Carmel's business men just as much as of its residents and its artists. Fundamentally, the merchants are as jealous of the town's distinction, as eager to hold to its traditions, as any "old-timer." Now and again they may fail to understand values, and may approve an immediate advantage over the far-distant profit, but all they need is to have the way pointed. Most of them have a thorough realization that Carmel's prosperity is due to its "difference," not to its conformity to other towns.

Suggested Reading From Macbeth's Lending Library

THE SOUND WAGON
(T. S. Stribling)

With humor, irony and penetrating understanding, Mr. Stribling watches the wheels of American political and social life go round, allowing the reader intimate and breath-taking glimpses of the intricate machine. The best book about America in years.

MEN AND BRETHREN
(James Gould Cozzens)

The author of "The Last Adam" presents another delightful character, a young New York clergyman who solves his problems in as unorthodox a manner as did the lovable Dr. Bull. An even better book than "San Pedro" and "The Last Adam."

Again to Carmel we suggest the latest book of poems of Robinson Jeffers' SOLSTICE.

Girl Scouts Busy During Yuletide

The Christmas season was a busy time for the various Girl Scout troops of the peninsula. Welfare work and the singing of Christmas carols gave the girls an added sense of the significance of the season, and added to their own satisfaction in a happy Yuletide. The two Carmel troops, joined by a few of the Brownies, sang carols early on Christmas eve, in attractive red "sprite" costumes which they had prepared for the occasion. Troop 3 in Monterey and Troop 9 in Pacific Grove also went carolling.

Monterey high school troop, No. 4, packed a basket of food for a needy family, and the project of Carmel Troop 1 was the packing of a basket for the Community Center. The girls went to the center in small groups to find out what was most needed, then each patrol was responsible for a part of the buying.

Troop 5 in New Monterey made rag dolls for smaller girls. Troop 6, in Seaside, concentrated on Christmas cards. Troop 9, of Pacific Grove high school prepared a complete layette for a new baby, all the articles being hand-made except shirts and blankets, which were purchased.

Try-Outs Tonight for Next Community Play

Community players will meet this evening at the Green Room on Casanova on read for parts in "The Double Door" scheduled for late January production. This is the meeting which was to have been held last Friday evening, but was postponed because of the illness of the director, Harriet Smith. "The Double Door" is described as a sure-fire melodrama, with plenty of excitement and suspense, and having a couple of big parts for women. It has not previously been produced in the west.

Tonight's meeting is open to all interested in reading for parts. It will begin about 8 o'clock.

Artists Invited To Submit Oils

CARMEL artists are invited to submit oils, watercolors or pastels for the annual statewide exhibit sponsored by the Santa Cruz Art League. This will be the ninth consecutive show, and the dates are Feb. 9 to 23, in the Bay View room and sun parlors at the Santa Cruz auditorium.

On the jury this year are William Ritschel of Carmel Highlands, James A. Holden of Oakland and Miss Corde Gavere of Seabright. The Santa Cruz Art League offers the first prize for oils of $100, first prize for watercolors of $50, and first prize for pastels, $10. A purchase prize of $50 is offered by the Santa Cruz Woman's club.

Each artist may enter three pictures only. No black and white or black prints or copies will be accepted. All entries should be shipped to the Santa Cruz Art League, Santa Cruz, and additional information and entry blanks may be obtained by writing to the League, Box 122, Seabright, Calif. Margaret E. Rogers is president of the organization, and the secretary is Lucy Gray Stockfleth.

RAIN STALLS MOTOR

When a car has stood in the rain for some time moisture often collects on spark plugs, wires, ignition, coil, and distributor cap, causing short circuits. Before the motor can be started all such "shorts" must be eliminated, according to the Emergency Road Service of the California State Automobile Association. The quickest and most effective plan is to wipe or fan dry with a clean rag all affected parts. A non-explosive cleaning fluid or fire extinguisher fluid speeds up the drying process if squirted on wires and connections where sparks can be seen jumping.

Top Poloists to Meet on Sunday

One of the best polo games this season is expected to be played Sunday afternoon in the finals of the Del Monte New Year's tournament at 2:30 o'clock on the Del Monte No. 1 field.

The closest match of the first round was between Del Monte and Ridgewood the game going into an extra chukker when the score stood at 7-7 at the end of the sixth period. Pat Linfoot scored the winning point for the Del Monte team.

Outstanding player on the field was Eric Tyrrell-Martin, captain of the 1936 British International team, who scored six of the Del Monte goals despite the fact that he was thrown from the saddle in the early part of the game.

In the other games San Mateo upset pre-tournament dope by defeating the Pog O Nip team of Harold Lane, Santa Barbara defeated Castro Valley and Major Magor's Panthers trimmed the Argentines despite a dogged determination on the part of Hésbeth Hughes of the Argentine team.

Clara Callender and Puget Defeat "Babe"

Though the Texas wonder girl gave a good sample of the hard hitting which has made her famous, Mildred "Babe" Didrikson and her partner, Lieut. Robert Mills were defeated 3 and 2 by Clara Callender and Henry Puget in an exhibition match at the Del Monte course Sunday.

Miss Didrikson shot an 80 and Miss Callender 81, three and four over par, respectively. It was the men players, however, who stole the show, Puget, Cypress Point pro, shot 69, two under par, and Lieut. Meals had a par 71.

State to Beautify Highways In 1936

California will spend $280,000 to beautify roadsides in 1936, it was announced by H. Dana Bowers, landscape engineer of the state division of highway maintenance.

"The attraction of tourist travel alone would justify the expenditure of large sums in order that our roadsides should present a pleasing appearance," said Bowers, "but, in addition to that factor, the United States government requires a certain amount of federal funds allotted for state highway improvements be set aside for roadside beautification."

ART NOTES

Stanford University Art Gallery is showing 27 pastel paintings by Corrine Malvern, color illustrator of Los Angeles. This group of paintings will be exhibited until Jan. 12. The subjects are portraiture types, including nine Oriental figures and seven Hawaiian types, the rest being costumed figures, colorfully arranged.

Corrine Malvern's work is known for its strong handlings, equalling oil painting technique. Close examination is necessary to see that the medium is pastel and not oil paint. The figure drawings are drawn correctly and the figure poses are human and relaxed, which is evidence that the artist knows the figure. Miss Malvern studied for several years with Bridgeman, the noted art anatomist and teacher in the Art Students League in New York, as well as other leading art schools in the east.

Antonia Tamar, the Russian artist shows two oils at the Legion Palace, in San Francisco, "Foggy Evening" and "Monterey Bay." These two paintings confirm the position of Miss Tamar as an artist of rare distinction. In her art, she talks in whispers rather than in a loud voice. Her greys are all-enwrapping and her vision of cities, people and objects is that of a poet. She is highly imaginative. With her there is no question of virtuosity. Her art is delicate lyricism. You cannot analyse the technical virtues of these two paintings. Thoroughly personal and unaffected they are organically so complete that they escape technical analysis. The sensitive qualities have, here, submerged the technique.

Among all the lithographs shown in the annual exhibition of the California Society of Etchers now being held at the San Francisco Museum of Art, those by Ray Bertrand stand out by their tonal qualities. As it is, this show is quite honorable. Especially noteworthy are the wood-blocks by Ray Bethers, the sensitive etchings of trees by Ray Burrell, the satirical lithographs by Mildred Coughlin, the fine etchings by Nat Levy, Miller's exquisite "Twin Oaks" (etching), Julius Pommer's "Wrestlers" (drypoint), Nelson Poole's excellent group of three etchings and one drypoint, especially "Horses at Dry Pasture" and "The Photographer," Mary Francis Wildman's "Hospice on the Pilgrim's Trail" (etching) and Edward de Witt Taylor's "An Old Wharf" (etching and drypoint) without forgetting Margaret Kidder's Puppets (engraving) and her "Madonna" (lithograph).

Among old masters recently added to the permanent collections of the California Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco there are canvasses by Van Dyck, Carlo Maratta, Giovanni Battista Pittoni, Sir Godfrey, Kneller, Paulus Moreelse and an anonymous of the 17th Century Spanish School.

Especially noteworthy is the work by Van Dyck, Carlo Maratta and Pittoni.

Plans for the Fourth Annual Parilla and Artists' Ball of the San Francisco Art Association to be held Friday night, Jan. 17, in Exposition Auditorium, are taking definite and concrete form.

The work is being carried forward by the committee in charge, of which Timothy Pfeuger is general director, with a firmly fixed objective. That objective is a union of art and revel expressed in a spectacular pageant of artistic splendor followed by a ball in which dull care will have no part.

The gala artists' event carries the title of Cambodian Ball. It casts a rose-colored shadow before with promise of even greater richness in revel and magnificence of spectacle than the high point reached by the memorable Aztec Ball of a year ago.

Five-Point Program Announced to Reduce Homicides on Highways

WITH strong indications that California's 1935 traffic toll will equal or exceed the staggering casualty record of 1934, despite greatly intensified efforts to reduce motor vehicle accidents, the California Safety Council has announced a five-point program, establishing definite objectives in its war on highway homicides.

The safety program, made public by William May Garland of Los Angeles, president of the council, is as follows:

1.—Education — More exacting qualifications for drivers. Education of potential drivers in the schools. Public education before women's clubs, civic and commercial groups, in the fundamentals of safe driving. Revocation of licenses of unfit operators and strict examination of applicants for licenses of State Motor Vehicle Department.

2. Enforcement—Adequate and uniform enforcement of existing laws through fully complemented State Highway Patrol, and with the cooperation of municipal judges and police traffic officers. Particular stress to be placed on enforcement of legal penalties on private motorists and operators of commercial vehicles in relation to speeding, drunken driving, qualification of drivers, size and weight of vehicles, condition of brakes and other phases of equipment. Limitation of commercial use of the public highways by truck and bus lines in all cases where hazards to the safety of private motorists are added by the operation of commercial vehicles. Vigorous and sustained opposition to traffic "tag fixing."

3. Engineering — Provision for application of every scientifically approved safety insurer or device to reduce traffic hazards, such as guard rails, underpasses, signals, safety islands and other safeguards which may be required for proper highway maintenance and in the interest of added safety.

4. Uniform Administration — Adoption of uniform traffic control, technique system throughout California, thereby increasing road safety and efficiency of commercial and pleasure cars on main arterials throughout California.

5. Legislation—Revision of traffic laws as and when needed to more fully protect life and property of motorists and pedestrians on California highways.

Either we preserve the United States as it was bequeathed to us and as we have known it or we depart for fantastic adventures on an unknown sea of guesswork.—Colonel Wm. J. Donovan of New York.

State to Beautify Highways In 1936

California will spend $280,000 to beautify roadsides in 1936, it was announced by H. Dana Bowers, landscape engineer of the state division of highway maintenance.

"The attraction of tourist travel alone would justify the expenditure of large sums in order that our roadsides should present a pleasing appearance," said Bowers, "but, in addition to that factor, the United States government requires a certain amount of federal funds allotted for state highway improvements be set aside for roadside beautification."

ART NOTES

Stanford University Art Gallery is showing 27 pastel paintings by Corrine Malvern, color illustrator of Los Angeles. This group of paintings will be exhibited until Jan. 12. The subjects are portraiture types, including nine Oriental figures and seven Hawaiian types, the rest being costumed figures, colorfully arranged.

Corrine Malvern's work is known for its strong handling, equalling oil painting technique. Close examination is necessary to see that the medium is pastel and not oil paint. The figure drawings are drawn correctly and the figure poses are human and relaxed, which is evidence that the artist knows the figure. Miss Malvern studied for several years with Bridgeman, the noted art anatomist and teacher in the Art Students League in New York, as well as other leading art schools in the east.

Antonia Tamar, the Russian artist shows two oils at the Legion Palace, in San Francisco, "Foggy Evening" and "Monterey Bay." These two paintings confirm the position of Miss Tamar as an artist of rare distinction. In her art, she talks in whispers rather than in a loud voice. Her greys are all-enwrapping and her vision of cities, people and objects is that of a poet. She is highly imaginative. With her there is no question of virtuosity. Her art is delicate lyricism. You cannot analyse the technical virtues of these two paintings. Thoroughly personal and unaffected they are organically so complete that they escape technical analysis. The sensitive qualities here, submerged the technique.

Among all the lithographs shown in the annual exhibition of the California Society of Etchers now being held at the San Francisco Museum of Art, those by Ray Bertrand stand out by their tonal qualities. As it is, this show is quite honorable. Especially noteworthy are the wood-blocks by Ray Bethers, the sensitive etchings of trees by Ray Burrell, the satirical lithographs by Mildred Coughlin, the fine etchings by Nat Levy, Miller's exquisite "Twin Oaks" (etching), Julius Pommer's "Wrestlers" (drypoint), Nelson Poole's excellent group of three etchings and one drypoint, especially "Horses at Dry Pasture" and "The Photographer." Mary Francis Wildman's "Hospice on the pilgrim's Trail" (etching) and Edward de Witt Taylor's "An Old Wharf" (etching and drypoint) without forgetting Margaret Kidder's Puppets (engraving) and her "Madonna" (lithograph).

Among old masters recently added to the permanent collections of the California Palace of the Legion of Honor in San Francisco there are canvasses by Van Dyck, Carlo Maratta, Giovanni Battista Pittoni, Sir Godfrey Kneller, Paulus Moreelse and an anonymous of the 17th Century Spanish School.

Especially noteworthy is the work by Van Dyck, Carlo Maratta and Pittoni.

Plans for the Fourth Annual Parilla and Artists' Ball of the San Francisco Art Association to be held Friday night, Jan. 17, in Exposition Auditorium, are taking definite and concrete form.

The work is being carried forward by the committee in charge, of which Timothy Pfeuger is general director, with a firmly fixed objective. That objective is a union of art and revel expressed in a spectacular pageant of artistic splendor followed by a ball in which dull care will have no part.

The gala artists' event carries the title of Cambodian Ball. It casts a rose-colored shadow before with promise of even greater richness in revel and magnificence of spectacle than the high point reached by the memorable Aztec Ball of a year ago.

Five-Point Program Announced to Reduce Homicides on Highways

WITH strong indications that California's 1935 traffic toll will equal or exceed the staggering casualty record of 1934, despite greatly intensified efforts to reduce motor vehicle accidents, the California Safety Council has announced a five-point program, establishing definite objectives in its war on highway homicides.

The safety program, made public by William May Garland of Los Angeles, president of the council, is as follows:

1. Education—More exacting qualifications for drivers. Education of potential drivers in the schools. Public education before women's clubs, civic and commercial groups, in the fundamentals of safe driving. Revocation of licenses of unfit operators and strict examination of applicants for licenses of State Motor Vehicle Department.

2. Enforcement—Adequate and uniform enforcement of existing laws through fully complemented State Highway Patrol, and with the cooperation of municipal judges and police traffic officers. Particular stress to be placed on enforcement of legal penalties on private motorists and operators of commercial vehicles in relation to speeding, drunken driving, qualification of drivers, size and weight of vehicles, condition of brakes and other phases of equipment. Limitation of commercial use of the public highways by truck and bus lines in all cases where hazards to the safety of private motorists are added by the operation of commercial vehicles. Vigorous and sustained opposition to traffic "tag fixing."

3. Engineering—Provision for application of every scientifically approved safety insurer or device to reduce traffic hazards, such as guard rails, underpasses, signals, safety islands and other safeguards which may be required for proper highway maintenance and in the interest of added safety.

4. Uniform Administration—Adoption of uniform traffic control

technique system throughout California, thereby increasing road safety and efficiency of commercial and pleasure cars on main arterials throughout California.

5. Legislation—Revision of traffic laws as and when needed to more fully protect life and property of motorists and pedestrians on California highways.

Either we preserve the United States as it was bequeathed to us and as we have known it or we depart for fantastic adventures on an unknown sea of guesswork.—Colonel Wm. J. Donovan of New York.

DO YOU WANT THE SPEEDWAY?

Carmel's city council has shown that it is sensitive and responsive to public opinion. One very considerable sector of Carmel's public does not favor the widening of Ocean avenue into a super-highway, a matter due to come up at the meeting this very evening. An ordinance setting the width of the sidewalks in one block at eight feet instead of 12, thereby widening the ingress to Carmel has passed its first reading, but will not become a law until it passes second reading. There will be an opportunity for citizens to express themselves before the ordinance is finally voted upon.

A matter on which even the council is sharply divided in opinion needs further consideration before it is acted upon. Has the "bottle neck" result of widening the street in one block, then narrowing it again, been given careful consideration? Many communities have rued the day when they have permitted this sort of street construction. Traffic jams are inevitable wherever cars must pass from a wide stretch of highway to a narrower one. You know well enough the dangers and inconvenience of coming on a bridge which is not as wide as the two portions of highway it connects. The present plan of tinkering with the width of Ocean avenue has not been well thought out, and needs further consideration. And an ordinance which will make it possible to change the south line of Devendorf plaza needs a couple of second thoughts before it is permitted to pass. It should be borne in mind that after this ordinance passes there will be no check on the manner in which the "improvement" is carried out. It will be in the hands of the street department, for better or worse.

Come to the council meeting tonight, and hear just what is proposed in this street-widening ordinance. Don't wait until after the work starts to protest. The time for Carmelites to make their wishes felt in the matter of "preserving" Carmel is at council meetings, where laws are passed, not after the pick or the axe falls.

STATE PROMISES TO PAY

California, the great state of California, is paying its small bills in the form of promissory notes, bearing 4 per cent interest per annum. The deplorable condition of California's finances comes home rather grimly when you look at a warrant for the magnificent sum of 75 cents, "not paid for want of funds." The finances of this state have been deplorably mismanaged. In point of national resources California is incredibly rich; we have the manpower to develop it to the utmost. This state is a stronghold of the Republican party; that great party which knows so much more than the Democratic party about able and efficient administration that it is straining at the leash to get back into Washington and show us how the nation should be run.

This state could have been, and should have been, during these past four years, a laboratory for all those splendid ideas about efficiency and economy of which the GOP prates so loudly. Instead, we have seen a deficit mounting at a pace comparable with the federal deficit. The Republicans of California had better "rare back and pass a miracle" in the next few months, if they would help to restore their party to the good graces of the national electorate.

SONG OF THE TREES

*I was healed of the world's complaining
 Among the trees that day;
 Their blossomy talk was the sibilant
 Music of waves at play.*

*And yet their wounds were many;
 I who am blind could note
 At every turn what the ruthless
 Hand of adversity wrote.*

*I grieved for a maple sapling,
 Choked to death by a vine.
 I was bowed with its head in torture
 Within that forest shrine.*

*My body was bent almost double
 Holding a hulk of an oak;
 And mine was the trunk that was hollowed
 And killed by burrowing folk.*

*Mine was the knot that I covered
 With a beautiful patterned grain.
 And I was the beech that lightning
 Broke in splinters of pain.*

*How could I go complaining
 On that or any day
 When the song of the trees was the sibilant
 Music of waves at play.*

—LLOYD FRANK MERRELL.

HARRIDAN

*I dread this vixen, swirling through the night,
 Snatching at leaves and petals off their guard,
 Trying my windows with manauding hand,
 And haunting decent rest with restlessness.*

*Wind is a wanton; scorn her as I may,
 She plays the harridan with prided poise.*

—ELINOR LENNEN.

Here's Looking at You

By LOIS COLLINS PALMER

WHAT has become of the good old custom of New Year's resolutions? Do people still make them, or have we become too cynical to regard January 1 as a good day to pull up our socks and try again? Most of us have ideals—even this disillusioned generation. Ideals are fine, so long as we don't try to make other people conform to them. Ideals are a strictly personal business, something we should work at very hard ourselves and not worry too much if we find others falling short of our self-imposed standards.

Tolerance and understanding: you could further and fare worse for a sort of omnibus New Year resolution. It takes courage to see life clearly and whole, and a good deal of mental elbow grease. It doesn't come easily. And having chosen to understand, to consider the worst and the best with the same objective attitude, only a deep tolerance permits us to bear with equanimity what we have learned. Tolerance and understanding, they go hand in hand, the one not of much use without the other.

We can use both of these virtues in Carmel. The better we know people—and in a village of this size we are thrown pretty closely together—the more tolerance we need. We have many strong and antagonistic points of view in this village of individualists. Definite points of view are fine, provided we bear in the mind always the possibility that we may be mistaken in some of our conclusions. We have a fine chance to learn from each other; to make, in the interests of courtesy and gracious living, those adjustments which fit us for citizenship in a fascinating and changing world. We are going to need all our courtesy and forbearance, if we are to go through this next year without becoming a pack of old crabs. Let's not take life too seriously; even if this is a "political year".

JUST AN OVERSIGHT

Something was missing from the holiday celebration in Carmel this year, and regret for it is being widely expressed. One of Carmel's loveliest traditions has been the "party" about the municipal Christmas tree, a custom particularly dear to the village. There was no singing of Christmas carols, no candy for the children, none of the feeling of the community being welded together in the common joy of Yuletide.

What is anybody's business, as all the world knows, becomes nobody's business. No one was definitely assigned the task of planning a Christmas party, so although lots of people expressed the wish and the hope that "somebody would do something," no one took the initiative. The community chorus would gladly have led the singing, discussed doing so, in fact, but they didn't know to whom their services should be offered.

There is one small bit of comfort to be drawn from the oversight. Everyone was busy just before Christmas. The business people were enjoying the bewildering sensation of "the best year since 1929"; it is not to be wondered at, nor too harshly condemned, that they had no time nor thought for the planning of a village celebration. Another year it will be different. A year from now, God willing, we will be habituated to the accelerated business pace, we will have time and the spirit to revive the Christmas custom. We must have it understood that this year's failure was just a lapse, an oversight, not the abrogation for all time of Carmel's Christmas tradition.

IT'S OFFICIAL NOW

Now that it has appeared in the daily press, it is official, and people can believe it. Books have been written on the subject, and it has been a matter for conversation for years. But now, with an air of great surprise and under large headlines, daily papers have "broken" the story that we went to war in 1917 to protect J. P. Morgan's loans to the allies. Was anyone surprised at this disclosure?

If Morgan had been backing the Germans to win, would we have found ourselves arm in arm with the "frightful Hun" instead of "making the world safe for democracy?" It is all rather hard on the honest idealists who went to the war, not knowing why or for whom they were fighting. People ought to know the honest reasons why things happen. We become wiser and wiser, but usually about a generation too late.

CLOUDS OVER MONTEREY

After a sunny December, making the Monterey peninsula beautiful to look upon, the rain clouds of the past week, nevertheless were welcome. Monterey county's soil was sadly in need of moisture.

Throughout most of California to date rainfall stands about 60 per cent of normal. And this is the more discouraging to farmers—to all of us for that matter—since we got the impression a year ago that the cycle of dryness had passed with the flood of rain we had then. There have been altogether too many dry years.

In 1929, 1930, 1932 and 1933 rainfall in many parts of the state was not much more than half normal. Unless this is to be another dry one, the clouds must spill a lot of moisture before winter is through.

Dressmaking Classes Will Be Resumed

Dressmaking, styling, and millinery classes will continue again as a part of the regular peninsula adult education program. Announcement has just been made that Miss Ailyn Enos of the Ailyn Shop in Carmel has been engaged to carry on the successful classes developed here during the past two years by the late Mrs. Esther Englesby.

LORRAINE LOWRIE COCKBURN was officially christened with the second names of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ranald Cockburn, at 5 o'clock on Sunday, at Del Monte chapel, where her parents were married. Rev. Austin B. Chinn presided at the ceremonial. Present at the christening were the baby's four grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Cockburn, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Sherman Winslow, and a grand uncle, Fred G. Andrews, together with a family party of about 20 all. Her godparents were Mr. and Mrs. Fredric Burt.

Little Lorraine Lowrie wore for the ceremonial a family christening robe which came around the Horn from England in 1856; which had been worn by her father, her maternal grandmother, and her great-grandmother and all the family babies of the various generations. It is of fine nainsook, trimmed with lace and embroidery and entirely hand-made.

After the ceremony the entire party was entertained at tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Cockburn in San Antonio.

Captain and Mrs. De Witt Blamer held open house on New Year's Day, at their home on San Antonio from noon until late in the afternoon, celebrating both the holiday and the birthday of the hostess. About one hundred of their friends dropped in during the afternoon.

Mme. Borghild Janson had about 25 guests at her home on Christmas eve, for a party which illustrated the typical Norwegian manner of celebrating the holiday.

Sailing from San Francisco next week, Mrs. Charles Bigelow of the Highlands will devote several months to a round-the-world tour. She expects to return in April.

Mr. and Mrs. John Douglass Short had about 25 guests at an egg nog party Sunday afternoon.

Holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kalmon Y. Sapero in Hatton Fields were his father, Dr. K. Sapero of Denver, and his sister, Mrs. Lillyan Lavelle of Long Beach. The Saperos entertained informally for them last Friday evening.

The Misses Margaret and Betty Reynolds are at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Reynolds for the holiday period, the former from Los Angeles and the latter from Pomona College.

Alan Campbell joined his mother in Menlo Park during the holiday week.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross Cowan are here from Pasadena for a holiday visit.

Dr. and Mrs. Fred Safier of San Francisco are at Pine Inn for the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Newman have as holiday guests her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Love of Pasadena.

Miss Ruth C. Holmes of Medford Ore., who made her home here for about four years, has arrived for an indefinite stay.

A week-end guest of Mrs. Vera Peck Millis was Miss Beatrice Colton of Berkeley.

Coyotes Had Bad Time During 1935

Residents of the east side of Carmel who hear the mesa coyotes howl at night may be interested in figures just compiled by the Division of Fish and Game, Department of Natural Resources.

Statistics obtained from tabulation of the first 10,000 hunting applications received last year show that these 10,000 sportsmen killed 2414 of the wily and destructive animals in 54 counties of the state. Gun, trap and poisoned bait accounted for the majority of them. When the final figures are obtained from checking the more than 10,000 applications now in hand, this number will run to nearly 35,000, if the same average is maintained.

Under the plan now in effect, the division requires that each hunting applicant fill out a blank which furnishes statistics relating to bag, location and species of animals and birds taken. These figures enable the Division to concentrate its energies in places where most needed.
